- 4. Contract Negotiations update

In negotiations – they say they are going to cut 26%, but then in other contexts, they back off from that and say actually we really want to grow enrollment at the college. Trying to create a realistic picture of what's happening at the table is difficult for both sides, but the way they are spinning the future predictions is to put downward pressure on our wages. No matter what the size of the college – they need to pay people a wage that allows us to live in this city. From the enrollment management committee – where's the data? We
