9. Immigration Rights Presentation: Marc Santamaria (ESL instructor and immigrant rights lawyer) came to share information about lesson plans for low-level non-native English speakers. They have formed a group working on getting information out to students so they know how to interact with police officers or others that might put them in vulnerable situations. – April 5th, 5pm Day Labor Center on Cesar Chavez – msantamaria@ccsf.edu – Questions were asked if ICE comes to your classroom, is there anything we can do or should not do? Document everything, tell your students that they have a right to document things. Ask for a warrant, and certain things in the warrant – the person’s name, it needs to be spelled correctly, address must also be printed and correct. It has to be signed by a judge and dated. The law is fuzzy in terms of how they can come into schools, but in terms of housing, they should not open the door, because opening the door allows implied consent. In a home, even undocumented have privacy rights.
